Press Reviews

Eyes Have It Music Festival: A delight to work with, were very professional and their set was excellent. There was plenty of positive feedback from the audience and I would have no hesitation in booking them again, in fact I hope they will be available for next year's festival.

Moonshine Magazine: I had really been looking forward to seeing the next band, Rendacium, with whom I'd been very impressed by at the wonderfully named Kevfest at The Horse & Groom back in April and festival organiser Simon Clark had also been impressed and on my recommendation had booked the band. The band played a varied and very energetic set starting with a song they'd written themselves called 'Paperheart' taken from their EP and their own unreleased material as well some great covers such as Green Day and The Arctic Monkeys with a maturity beyond their years. I wouldn't be at all surprised if Rendacium go onto bigger things in the future.

Spire Radio: The cool thing about this band isn't that they're unsigned or underground in anyway it's that they're between them collectively aged between 14 and 16. I've listened to their track [Stef] a few times since they were kind enough to share it with me and it's so good, the production value on this track is insane!! It's just so good, these guys clearly have a proper ear for music and I know that they will be going places.

Constiutional Club: What a brilliant time we had when Rendacium played at our club, so professional I can see these guys are going to go far. I would definitely recommend them and hope to see them again soon!
